*Please keep all cake tips used for paint away from using with food items. Paint cake tips can get rusty if left in water long, and no, you don't want rust to get in your painting, but definitely not in your food items. Clean paint out of the cake tips as soon as you can so no rusts builds up.

*Paints should have all lead removed by now from it's earlier years, but I did find a paint bottle that stated lead was in it.

*So please keep a total separate set of cake tips for just painting and don't clean them in the dish washer so they aren't confused. Clean them at the sink or in the shower, then put them back in your studio, not the kitchen. You might find a marking system of your own to differentiate them.
